Sheila Cote-Meek—vice president, Equity, People, and Culture at York University and co-editor of Decolonizing and Indigenizing Education in Canada (2020)—is an Indigenous administrator and scholar. She speaks widely on disrupting Eurocentric knowledge systems as a transformative force that integrates the importance of community engagement with Indigenous Peoples by building relationships and trust with a meaningful examination/interrogation of academic controls to knowledge, its production and decision-making, and what gets acknowledged as legitimate knowledge.
